

Frontclear and London Financial Studies join to support the on-line training needs of EMDC money market practitioners

Partnership to expand the Frontclear Academy training offering

AMSTERDAM / LONDON December 2020 – Frontclear and London Financial Studies (LFS) signed a Grant Agreement, making official their joint commitment to support the capacity development needs of both developing country regulators and banks’ staff.

The development of EMDC money markets and secondary bond markets, are going into high gear. Many countries are decisively taking on more conducive legal & regulatory frameworks including passing netting regulation as well as developing much needed market infrastructure. The knowledge of banks’ staff and wider regulators in these markets, needs to keep pace with the developments. The Frontclear Academy offers these markets the opportunity to continually learn in a clearly on-line world.

The partnership between LFS and Frontclear, will enable access to invaluable, technical learning. LFS is offering Frontclear Academy registrants five modules addressing topics like Valuation Adjustments: the XVA Challenge, and Bilateral Margining and Central Clearing. These modules are a solid complement to the existing Academy offering and will be launched by February 2021.

“The Frontclear Academy is expanding our capacity to meet the training needs of local market participants. The technical modules generously gifted by LFS, are a strong addition to the current course offering and speak directly to the skills required to operationalize a trade.” – Ingrid Hagen, Vice President Strategic Projects at Frontclear

“LFS is very pleased to partner with Frontclear in the delivery of top-quality learning to EMDC financial markets. Our work is built on four complementary key values: Practical Application, Intellectual Clarity, Personal Approach and Economic Value.” – David Cox, Founding Director at LFS
